"Victorious warriors win first and then go to war, while defeated warriors go to war first and then seek to win." In order to ace the CAT Verbal Section, we need to have a winning strategy that takes into account the most important factor in any plan - time. While there is no upper limit to the amount of preparation for the CAT, there must be a lower limit. Assuming that the CAT is approximately 14 weeks (98 days) away, we have 168 hours (a minimum required time, I repeat) to devote to the Verbal and RC section. As you must have discovered by now, Reading Comprehension passages in the CAT (and indeed, most other similar exams) are primarily non-fiction - something which most test-takers do not really frequently read. As we have discussed earlier in these posts, it is extremely important that some amount of time is devoted to the reading of non-fiction materials, such as books, newspapers, magazines, online and offline journals etc. "Plan for what it is difficult while it is easy, do what is great while it is small." That means 4 hours a week must be dedicated to practising the passages and the questions, and at least 2 hours a week (about 30 minutes a day) for such extra reading of newspapers and journals.
